

IDC TERMS OF USE

USING, SHARING, AND DISTRIBUTING IDC RESEARCH WITHIN YOUR ORGANIZATION

This white paper clarifies your company's contractual agreement with IDC as it relates to Terms of Use. We hope this helps you maximize the value of IDC's global market intelligence and advice, by ensuring accuracy, currency, and proper context of IDC-sourced intelligence.

You may:

- use IDC data and information to support marketing, planning, business development, and other internal functions
- quote or paraphrase IDC research internally, provided that you source IDC by name
- insert IDC visuals (including PowerPoint slides, the Daily Graphic, tables or graphics) into internal company documents/presentations, provided that you source IDC by name
- allow multiple employees at your company to access IDC research, provided that the number of individuals does not exceed the number specified in your contract with IDC
- share or distribute relevant research to employees within your company, provided that the number of individuals accessing it does not exceed the number specified in your contract with IDC
- post IDC research on your internal intranet, provided that the number of individuals accessing it does not exceed the number specified in your contract with IDC
- allow consultants/contractors to access IDC's content when on client company premises and for client company-related projects
- purchase reprints of any IDC document. For reprints or web posting rights, please contact your local sales office.

Without IDC's prior written permission, you may not:

- reproduce or reformat IDC research
- quote or source IDC externally (i.e., in on- or off-line advertising, press releases, sales collateral, presentations, and promotional materials), including IDC intelligence that's in the public domain
- distribute the research to non-employees of your company (including suppliers, affiliates, partners, contractors, investors, or customers)

- . post IDC research on any external web site (including your own)
- . distribute or publish IDC information externally - e.g., to support on- or off-line advertising, press releases, sales collateral, promotional materials
- . permit consultants or contractors to 1) use IDC material for non-client company-related projects, or 2) take IDC material off site

Any external usage or distribution must be preceded by prior written approval from IDC. This applies to IDC market intelligence that exists in the public domain (e.g., in another company's presentation, on a website, or in the media).

This mandatory permissions process maximizes the value of IDC's global market intelligence and advice to you and the industry, by ensuring accuracy, currency, and proper context of IDC-sourced intelligence. If you have questions regarding this process, please email AP_Permissions@idc.com, or contact your IDC country manager.
